SWAMPED!

2068: The year the British become the Ethnic Minority

by Martin Wingfield and Steve Brady

"I UNDERSTAND peoples' fears about being swamped". That was Margaret Thatcher in April 1979 talking about coloured immigration.

Nine years of Thatcher rule later the grim message from a study published in March of this year is that Britain IS BEING SWAMPED and if present trends continue the British people will be a minority in their own country in 80 YEARS TIME.

Official Government Birth Statistics make frightening reading:

AVERAGE CHILDREN PER FAMILY:-

Bangladeshis - 8.0
Pakistanis - 6.1
Africans - 3.4
West Indians - 2.0
British - 1.7

Bearing these birth rate figures in mind, the study by Dr. Colin Brown of the influential Policy Studies Institute, a top Government think-tank, based on population figures derived from the 1981 Census and subsequent annual Government Labour Force Surveys, pinpoints the main area of concern.

The study confines itself to Pakistanis, behind West Indians and Indians the third-largest immigrant element in our country. It doesn't count the undoubtedly substantial number of Pakistanis who entered Britain illegally.

It shows there are, for example, at least 53,000 Pakistanis in Birmingham. Over 11,000 in the London borough of Waltham Forest, and more than 9,000 in Newham.

At least 7,280 in Luton, 6,720 in Slough, 1,140 in Crawley, Sussex and 3,590 in Middlesborough.

Over 70,000 Pakistanis (remember these figures do not include Bangladeshis, Indians, Africans or West Indians) in London. More than 13,300 in Kirklees, Yorkshire. 7,500 in Blackburn, Lancashire and as many again in nearby Rochdale.

About 10,000 Pakistanis in Manchester, 7,000 in Leeds and 8,000 in Sheffield. Apparently nowhere is safe: Peterborough in Cambridge has over 3,640, Bristol 2660, Reading 2380, even rural Aylesbury has over 1,400, and Woking in the heart of the Surrey stockbroker belt nearly 2,000.

Without a doubt Bradford in Yorkshire must be the capital of Pakistani-occupied Britain with over 38,600 including Mohammad Ajeeb, the city's mayor.

Remembering that the Pakistani population trebles every generation, between the 1981 census and 1987 it has gone up by half again, these figures mean that Britons will be a minority in their own country by the year 2068.

It is only a matter of time - even if coloured immigration was stopped today and not one further immigrant allowed into Britain - before Britons face the problem faced by the Fijians last year whereby control of their country is taken away from them by an alien wedge of coloured immigrants - perhaps even within the lifetime of babies being born today.

Britain is being swamped. Only the National Front will save our old and proud nation from drowning in the flood of coloured immigration by not just halting the tide, but by returning all coloured immigrants to their land of ethnic origin.

BBC WITH BLOOD ON ITS HANDS

A NEWSPAPER in Manila, the Philipines, has claimed that the BBC asked Communist guerrillas to stage an ambush for them to film for a current affairs programme.

The revelation comes after a government push against the guerrillas in which rebel documents were seized. They included a letter from the BBC requesting the guerrillas stage an ambush which would be filmed by the BBC crew.

The ambush did take place and eleven government soldiers were killed.

No doubt the BBC had to pay a big fee to the guerrillas to stage the ambush. So here we have the BBC giving our money, paid through TV licenses, to Communist guerrillas for them to kill soldiers of another country.

It is the classic example of the media creating its own news, and similar to the escapades of journalists in Mexico two years ago for the World Cup who went around offering English football fans money to cause violence.

Eleven lives have been lost in the BBC's quest for a 'good story'. The culprits within the corporation who paid for the murders to take place must now pay again, this time for their actions.

They should be handed over to the Government of the Philipines to face charges of conspiring to arrange for the murder of eleven government soldiers.

Herald Hero Dismissed by P & O.

WHEN THE Herald of Free Enterprise sank at Zeebrugge, Tom Wilson was helmsman. He was the first to organise the rescue of passengers and crew. For his bravery on that terrible night he was awarded the Queen's Gallantry Medal. When the other crew survivors changed jobs, Mr Wilson stuck with the company.

Tom Wilson is a member of the Territorial Army and recently served two weeks with them in West Germany. On his return he found a dismissal notice from P & O waiting for him. The reason - he had refused to work a new contract which involved longer hours for less pay.

The National Front will not speculate as to whether P & O find it necessary to cut their workers pay in order to pay for a recent donation of over £200,000 to the Conservative Party, but it will make this promise. In a National Front Britain, loyal, patriotic, brave workers like Tom Wilson will never be treated such a manner.

MORE MARKET EXPENSE

BEING A member of the EEC will put up transport fares by more than 13%.

Common Market rule changes mean that Britian will have to increase the fares when the single barrier free European market is introduced in 1992.

The National Front says 'GET BRITAIN OUT OF THE EEC'.

Terrorist Act

BIRMINGHAM NF have complained to the Home Office that the IRA march on May 14th breached the Prevention of Terrorism Act 1984.

The act states that the expression of support for proscribed organisations is illegal.

Birmingham NF claim that the act was breached numerous times during the march.

GADAFFI'S ARMS FOR THE IRA!

By Steve Brady

LIBYAN DICTATOR, COLONEL Gaddafi is the IRA's Godfather of Death. He is the man whose continuing supplies of arms keep the Provos' murder campaign going.

From sending the IRA a few odd shipments of arms, such as those found on board the Claudia in 1973, the British-hating tyrant has now overtaken Irish-Americans as the Provos' No. 1 weapon supplier.

The extent of Gaddafi's support for the IRA's war against the British people only became clear after the French customs stumbled on a massive shipment of IRA-bound Libyan arms last October.

On the 28th of that month, French coast guards boarded the freighter Eksund off the coast of Brittany. They were looking for drugs. Instead they found 150 tons of sophisticated weapons, including over 20 Soviet SAM-7 surface-to-air-missiles, two cases of Russian RPG-7 anti-tank launchers, 1,000 Czech AK-47 assault rifles and two tons of the deadly new, almost undetectable, plastic explosive Semtex - enough to equip a crack regular Army battalion.

They also found lurking on board, Gabriel Cleary, a member of the IRA's 'Army Council' and the murder gang's top gun-runner and bomb-maker.

It turned out that the Eksund's IRA arsenal had been loaded aboard a fortnight earlier under cover of darkness in the Libyan capital, Tripoli, by Libyan troops. Supervising the operation was top Gaddafi aide Azur Nasser, link-man between the Colonel and the Provoes. And this massive arms shipment was only the tip of the iceberg of the weapons and other help Gaddafi has already given, and is still giving, to the Provo murder gang.

On 9th August 1985, the IRA gunrunning vessel Casamara rendezvoused with a Libyan ship five miles west of Malta. The Libyans handed over seven tons of arms for the IRA, including 70 AK-47 battle rifles and a consignment of Taurus automatic pistols. The IRA landed this Libyan weaponry near Arklow, south of Dublin, under the noses of the sympathetic or at best incompetent Irish security forces.

In October 1985, the Libyans sent another shipload of arms, including not only Webley revolvers and another 100 AK-47s but ten general purpose heavy machine guns, which reached the Provoes by the identical route.

In July 1986, again in exactly the same way and without the Irish Government doing a thing to stop them, the Libyans sent a third shipment of 14 tons of arms, including four surface-to-air missiles. This time the Irish authorities could not even plead ignorance of what was going on. In January 1986, after being told where to look by British Intelligence, the Irish police found over 80 AK-47s, a box of Taurus pistols and cases of ammunition, some still bearing their Libyan Army markings (all from Gaddafi's first 1985 shipment to the IRA) in Provo arms bunkers in Sligo and Roscommon. Yet six months later the third Libyan shipment was safely unloaded and got away by the IRA in exactly the same place and in exactly the same way as the other two.

The Irish police did nothing

The IRA then bought a bigger boat, the Villa, which in October 1986 took aboard 105 tons of arms, loaded just outside Tripoli by the Libyan Military, enough for over 1,000 fully-armed troops and including an unknown number of SAM-7 anti-aircraft missiles. Top IRA terrorist, Cleary and several of his fellow Provoes were also given training in shooting down British aircraft with the SAM-7s by the Libyan Army.

The arms were yet again unloaded in the same place in Ireland, unmolested by the Irish authorities even though the Provoes sailed up to Arklow's Roadstone Pier and simply loaded their Libyan armoury into a fleet of lorries, which trundled off laden with guns, missiles and the like to Provo arms dumps all over Ireland.

The Irish 'Justice Minister', Gerry Collins, said the IRA got away with this massive gunrunning operation due to a 'blind spot in Irish intelligence'. It looks a lot more like a blind eye. Especially as the fifth and biggest shipment of Libyan weapons, aboard an even bigger boat, the Eksund, only failed to get through because the French accidentally stumbled across it whilst looking for drugs.

Thanks to Gaddafi's help, and the Irish Government's inactivity, the Provoes already have enough ordnance stashed away in Ireland and Ulster to unleash a bloodbath of slaughtered Britons which will make Ulster's twenty-year agony so far seem like the Teddy-Bears Picnic.

BACK DOOR IMMIGRATION - A BOOMING INDUSTRY

ON MAY 8th immigration inspectors raided 100 addresses and arrested 61 suspected illegal immigrants. This resulted from a two-month inquiry into the 'Advanced College of Business and Cultural Studies' situated in the academically elite area of Cleveland Way, Bethnal Green, East London.

The 'College' had enabled 1000 Africans, mainly Ghanaians, to come to Britain 'to study'. The inquiry revealed that 990 of them had either no visa or had outstayed their visa. The proprietor of the college is a Mr Wuta-Ofei, a father of seven. As well as running this interesting academic establishment, he is also president of a pressure group for immigrants called the 'Black and Asian Organisation for Freedom and Justice'.

The Real Face of Today's Tories

WHO SAID about Zola Budd: "She is nothing but a running mercenary for apartheid. She is anything but an innocent waif".

Who said about anti-Communist Tibetan freedom fighter the Dalai Lama: "We must not be seduced into the belief that this is some poor innocent persecuted figure".

Who is Chairman of the Britain-Red China Parliamentary group?

'Red' Ken Livingstone?, Paul Boateng?, some other Marxist Labour looney?

Well actually no. In all cases the answer is Robert Adley, Conservative MP for Christchurch, Hampshire.

IT'S URDU NOT ENGLISH

BRADFORD COUNCIL are wasting ratepayers money on an Urdu word processor for the Bradford Resource Centre to help the city's Asian Community.

The equipment will be available to community groups to produce leaflets, reports, newsletters and posters.

Centre worker, Mike Quiggin, said "The software package will come from the council's computing department which has developed very impressive Urdu programmes".

Tory, Labour and Liberal politicians will tell you that these Asians are British and are contributing to the British way of life.

The National Front says they are Asians and are setting up an Asian way of life in Britain. A National Front government would return them, together with their word processor, to their land of ethnic origin.

★ ENOCH POWELL: A voice in the wilderness. Now only the NF holds aloft the standard of British Patriotism.

20 Years after Powell, Hurd spells out the new Tory policy

Grovelling for the Ethnic Vote

TWENTY YEARS ago, Enoch Powell prophetically warned that coloured immigration would lead to race riots in Britain. The Tories kicked him out of the Shadow Cabinet for saying it. On the anniversary of Mr. Powell's "Rivers of Blood" speech, today's Tory Home Secretary showed the Conservatives still prefer multi-racialist flannel and crawling for Black votes to Enoch's blunt honesty.

Speaking to Tories in High Wycombe, Douglas Hurd made it quite clear what side his party is on on the Immigration issue: "The Conservative Government and Conservative Party share an absolute, unquestioned and unqualified opposition to racial discrimination" (i.e. Putting the British people first in their own country)

"We need to ram home constantly the message that racial discrimination" (putting British people first in their own country) -"is obnoxious in principle, corrodes national unity and is wholly unacceptable in any civilised country. New Commonwealth immigrants and their children and grandchildren have found an accepted place in this country. They are making an increasingly notable contribution to many aspects of British life - business, the professions, politics, the arts, entertainment and sports" - and, he doubtless hoped, the Tory vote in elections!

Hurd went on to boast that under the Tories coloured immigrants now included 1100 police officers, 141 London councillors and over 500 magistrates .

"It is healthy that there should be Black and Asian MPs" grovelled the top Tory - "I only regret their Party labels", a clear call for more Black Tory candidates to scrape up the Black vote.

The same evening, Enoch Powell, cast out of the Tory fold for telling the truth, unwaveringly proclaimed his opposition to immigration, the multi-racial society and the Common Market. But his audience were not Tories but the non-party patriotic Royal Society of St. George meeting in Birmingham. A voice without a party crying in the wilderness

The words of Douglas Hurd, the official voice of modern Conservatism, and the fate of Enoch the Tory outcast, must make it crystal clear that, whatever some of their voters may think, the Tories aren't the Party of Patriotism and they won't do anything about the Blacks. The Conservatives today will not even conserve the identity of the British people they govern. They have betrayed the Union Flag in which they drape themselves.

Only the National Front holds aloft the standard of British patriotism, opposition to immigration and the Common Market - a standard we raised before ever Enoch spoke and which we will hold aloft after he has gone and the Tory leadership gets its Black MPs.

NO RACE PROBLEMS IN YORKSHIRE

ONLY 39 calls have been received by the special free Police helpline service for victims of racial abuse in Yorkshire.

Despite running for three weeks, the system, which lets Asians speak in confidence direct to police officers in five mother-tongue languages, has proved an expensive flop.

West Yorkshire's Police Race Relations Officer, Chief Inspector David Moore, said, "We would like to believe that the relatively low number of calls received indicates that there is no major problem".

Birmingham salutes NF anti-IRA demo!

★ Men with the courage of their convictions: Birmingham NF storm the front of the IRA march.

SEVENTY MEMBERS of Birmingham National Front stopped 450 IRA supporters marching through the city on Saturday 14th May. Seventeen arrests were made as the Front twice forced the march to come to a standstill.

More than two hundred police accompanied the IRA marchers, who were chanting 'IRA' and carrying placards proclaiming 'For the IRA against the British Army', as they left Sparkhill Park in Birmingham. Additional police were on the look out for the National Front counter-demonstration but made the mistake of looking for a 'large group of skinheads'. Birmingham NF only had one 'skinhead' on their demonstration so the Birmingham members were left alone by the Police as they waited in a public house by the route of the march.

When the IRA supporters came past the seventy NF members stormed out of the pub into the march capturing the Irish tricolour.

There were further skirmishes as the banner-waving IRA supporters continued into the city centre to be faced by more jeering Front members in Chamberlain Square.

Birmingham NF gained front page publicity in all the local papers and were the main item on local television and radio news.

The publicity was excellent with many local residents writing to support the National Front's action and many more making further enquires about the National Front and their policies.

I could hardly believe my eyes — marching through our city were IRA supporters chanting 'IRA, IRA' and voicing anti-British sentiments.

Are our memories so short that the brutal murder of 21 innocent civilians in the city in 1974 has been forgotten? Or all the other people, be they soldiers, police or civilians, that the IRA have murdered in their terror campaign? I sincerely hope not.

May I congratulate the National Front supporters who were on hand to oppose these evil people.

Whatever one thinks of their views on other matters, all patriotic British people must applaud them on their stand against the evil IRA.

● What has become of the backbone of the British to allow the IRA to march in defiance of all we stand for?

If the law allows it, does it mean the people have to?

What do the old sweats think of the way our hospitality has been used against us?

Britain — awake from your slumbers and don't be pushed about by all these social-study students who know nothing, only what they read in books, and don't know what the world is about.

Remember if the British get out of Ireland, the same can be said of Irish in Britain.

Forever England

Shard End.

Once again the citizens of Birmingham have suffered the indignity of seeing IRA supporters march through their streets.

Have we forgotten the 21 people that were killed and the many others that were maimed by the IRA?

Yet we continue to allow their supporters to march and parade in our streets. Are we mad?

Sinn Fein should be outlawed in this country and people should close ranks against any IRA sympathisers, and treat them with the contempt they deserve.

● Once again the authorities have allowed the IRA to march openly through the streets at cost to the ratepayers.

The people of Brum who simply "tut-tutted" and men who disappeared into their doorways should hang their heads in shame.

In these days when to march with the Union Flag is regarded as provocative but to wear T-shirts bearing Armalite rifles in praise of terrorists is acceptable, we should note that the only resistence to this march was shown by a tiny body of people you all love to hate, namely The National Front.

Once-Proud-Brummie

● I suggest that the next time the IRA are allowed to stain the streets with their presence, the people of Birmingham rise up and crush any march or rally.

That the police have to keep order at this event must be as sickening to them as it is to the rest of us.

What relatives of the murdered innocents in 1974 must think of an authority that allows this affront defies thought.

Was it a mere coincidence, I wonder, that they chose a time for the march when traditionally 95 per cent of the male population was watching the FA Cup Final?

Somehow I doubt it.

IT'S A CRIME TO OPPOSE THE IRA

★ Ian Anderson

ON MONDAY 9th May Ian Anderson, NF National Activities Organiser, was found guilty and fined £300 for 'threatening and abusive behaviour'. His crime was to lead chants of 'Smash, Smash, Smash the IRA'.

Appearing at Highbury Magistrates Court, Ian Anderson openly admitted organising a peaceful counter demonstration to an IRA march.

Two police officers gave evidence that he had been the clear organiser of the demonstration and that was why they had arrested him - while he was walking away from the IRA march.

In summing up, the magistrate commented that, in his opinion, continuous chants of 'Smash the IRA' would constitute an offence. He made no comment on the fact that the marchers were chanting 'IRA,IRA'.

Ian Anderson was fined £300 with £50 costs, and was bound over for one year in the sum of £200. After signing the binding book one police officer remarked 'You don't really care do you?', Ian replied 'It won't make any difference, the NF will oppose the IRA everytime they show their faces on Britain's streets'.

DEFEND THOSE WHO FIGHT FOR BRITAIN

Fines inccured by Ian Anderson and those brave NF members from Birmingham should be paid by the National Front. The Patriots' Defence Fund has been specificially set up to meet the cost of fines handed down by courts to National Front members engaged in political activities such as confronting an IRA march.

The Defence Fund solely relies on your generosity. Please give as much as you can afford to show your support for our activists who are in the front-line in the battle to win back our country.

BRANCH NEWS . . .

ON WEDNESDAY 26th May Bedford National Front held their first meeting. Videos of NF marches were showed and plans to leaflet the area drawn up.

NF members in Cardiff are forming a branch. Under the guidance of Organiser Steve Wilcox and with help from Bristol National Front local activists are confident of making an impact in the area.

Nationalists in Workington have decided to join with the National Front local officials Kevin Wilshaw and Roger Moore got overwhelming backing from local activists at a meeting on May 18th. Kevin Wilshaw reports that May's issue of The FLAG sold out during the regular weekly paper sales in St. John's precinct Workington.

BR SELL OFF: A CRIME AGAINST THE NATION

GOVERNMENT PLANS to sell off British Rail after the next General Election have been revealed by Whitehall sources.

It will mean the end of the nationwide rail links. Private companies will squabble over the profitable routes while the lines that serve the community but which are unprofitable will be unsaleable and forced to shut down.

Profit appears to be the only motivation for this Government. Anything or anyone who cannot turn in a few extra shekels for Madam Thatcher gets the chop. British Rail which helps get the nation to work everyday operates at a loss, in 1988-89 it was subsidised by the Government to the tune of £605 million.

The closures will start this November with the loss of the Settle-Carlisle line. The Transport Users' Consultative Council says the closure will mean hardship to vast numbers of local users but Transport Secretary Paul Channon retorted they can catch a bus.

The National Front pledges to maintain, improve and expand Britain's railways. The National Front would invest considerably in the railways encouraging both passenger and goods service, thus removing the congestion from our roads and cutting pollution.

The National Front would put British people before profit.

DECENTRALISATION

The Only Way to Save Britain's Green Belt!

by Ian Anderson

MR NICHOLAS RIDLEY, Secretary of State for the Environment, in a speech to the Bow Group on 10th May said that a minimum of 460,000 new homes would be needed in London and the South-East over the next 13 years. He is using these figures to justify his decision to allow developers to build on scarce rural agricultural land.

Such development is likely to be on some of the most picturesque land in South-East England. Some of the worst examples of rural desecration are planned for Berkshire where projected housing developments in rural areas total 23,750 houses covering nearly 5,000 acres. Small villages are being turned into giant housing estates, while much of the development is on meadow land and pasture which are important to nature reserves.

One irony of this is that most of these areas return Conservative MPs to Westminster and there is a great temptation to say: 'Serves you right'. The attitude of these MPs, led by Michael 'Tarzan' Heseltine is the traditional Tory hypocrisy of accepting the need for the development but desperately trying to drop it into someone else's lap - preferably into an area with a Liberal, SDP or Labour MP.

Of course, the Tory Party does have a problem, you only have to look at the list of donations it receives from building firms to realise this. But even more important is the closing of ranks of senior civil servants which is preventing the obvious solution to this problem.

The biggest single employer in the South east is the Government. Therefore it follows that the solution to the pressure on land in the South-East lies directly with the Government. Why, for example, does every main ministry have to be based in London - all very convenient for the relatively small number of MPs, but does it really make sense to house the Ministry of Defence in the heart of London. In time of war such a siting contributes directly to making Britain's most populous area a main target for an enemy.

Wouldn't it be more sensible to house the department of Trade and Industry in an area which needs trade and industry - like Scotland or Northern Ireland. Above all, a clear signal that the Government is taking the unemployment problems of northern Britain seriously would be the re-siting of the Bank of England in an area like Newcastle.

All the arguments that such concerns have to be in London to be near to the political hub of Britain have been made largely irrelevant by the advent of electronic communication.

The only reason left is because the senior civil servants and politicians who run these ministries, department etc. like to be close to each other and close to their favourite clubs. In this way they create circles of influential people who act as an almost secret society.

The National Front has always supported the decentralisation of huge employment magnets based in the City of London and in Westminster. Such a policy would rejuvenate many northern towns and cities and would greatly relieve the pressure on the rural areas of South-East England.

Any failure to do this is simply hypocrisy on the part of the Tory Party and a continuing policy of maintaining and exaggerating the North-South divide which is threatening our national unity and cohesion.

A STORY TO WARM YOUR HEART

THAMES VALLEY police have admitted their bid to recruit ethnic minorities into the police force has been a complete failure.

An active bid to get coloured people to join the force has been pushed for nearly 15 years - and there are still only a handful of recruits to show for it.

Superintendent Wilf Gay admitted at a meeting that the police authority had lavished money on a recruitment weekend with more than a dozen officers provided and only one coloured person turned up.

Now hasn't this story made your day?

IMMIGRATION INCREASE

INREASING numbers of people are being granted British citizenship in the United Kingdom every year, with 64,900 successful applications last year, 19,000 more than 1986 and 11,000 more than 1985.

Child Brides: Just a Publicity Gimmick

DO YOU remember those two poor Yemeni sisters from Birmingham who were sold into slavery as child brides by their father for £2,500. Their tragic plight was plastered all over the newspapers. The Foreign Office was brought in to see if they could get the return of the girls.

However at this stage the whole story began to smell just a little bit. In one of the numerous press interviews one of the girls said she would only return to Britain if she could bring her 'husband' with her. This jarred a little bit as it was sandwiched in between tearful pleadings:
"We thought everyone had forgotten us, we have been waiting here for years for someone to come and take us home".

Initially the Yemeni authorities would not allow the sisters out of the Yemen without their husbands, but they then co-operated with Foreign Office officials and Zana, the elder sister obtained a quick divorce, abandoned her 22 month old son and flew back to Britain.

★ Zana: Now the third wife

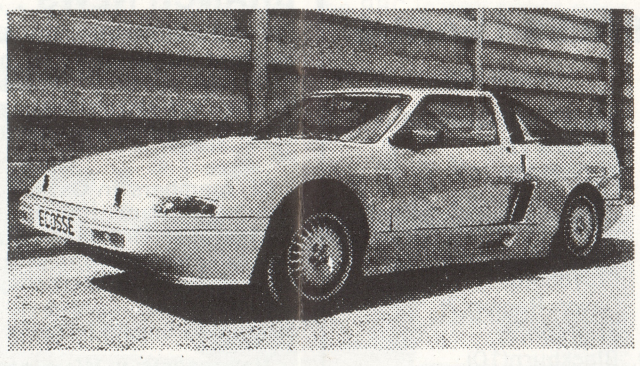
After the initial publicity, orchestrated by The Observer newspaper, showing how this girl had been saved from cruel kidnappers, the whole story fell completely apart. Just 14 days after arriving at Gatwick Airport, Zana announced she was returning to her village in the Yemen to marry another man who already has two wives.

At this point you have to wonder whether there was ever any truth in these stories or whether it was simply a publicity gimmick.

Goodness knows how much taxpayers' money has been wasted as a result of the clamouring of various national newspapers - of course, if there weren't any Yemenis in Britain none of this would ever have happened.

NEW BRITISH SPORTS CAR



A BRITISH sports car is to be built by the new Ecosse Car Company.

The car 'The Ecosse' was originally a project of the famous AC Car Company which folded up after running out of funds.

The Ecosse Car Company expects to produce 100-200 cars each year with a workforce of just 25. The managing director, Mr David Backsell, said that 'breakeven' is forecast for Autumn next year.

Good luck to a firm that clearly believes that small is beautiful!

SHOOT TO KILL

How my heart is filled with rage,
Each time I read a morning page,
Another IRA atrocity,

And even as they plot for more,
Their evil minds tot up the score,
Labour leaders express mere regret,
Their minions howl "more blood to let".

But listen to a different cry,
Should a terrorist be caused to die,
For the IRA's claim to fame,
Only they are free to kill and maim.

Men, women, children, all fair game,
When they their bombs and bullets aim,
Targets chosen for their lack,
Of ability to fight back.

Strange the Left do keep their silence,
Confronted with this brutal violence,
But their voice is really shrill,
Should the SAS shoot and kill.

We don't intend to let them gain,
From all the years of Ulster's pain,
And urge the Government to have the will,
To implement the shoot to kill.

The National Front has made its stand,
With loyal Ulster hand in hand,
And fights toward that day to greet,
*The Marxist IRA's DEFEAT!

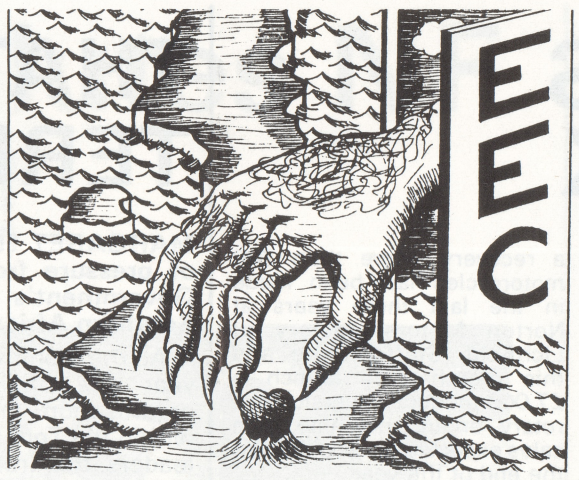
EUROPE'S OPEN FOR BUSINESS



The Sick Message that means the end of British Industry.

by Ian Anderson

IN 1992, JUST four years from now, all tariff barriers in Europe are due to be abolished and tax rates are to be 'harmonized'. All the usual batch of pro-marketeers are busy enthusing everyone with this prospect, describing the glittering prizes that are awaiting everyone when this glorious day arrives.

In a debate in the House of Commons on 13th April just one Labour MP had the temerity to question this vision. Mr Bruce Grocott pointed out "that at the time of original entry into the EEC the public had been told of the tremendous advantages it would bring. Since then there had been an increasing deficit in manufacturing industry between Britain and her partners".

So what is the truth. When the barriers are removed all the member countries of the Common Market will effectively become one economic entity. This will include Spain, Greece and Turkey plus any other semi-European countries which are admitted over the next few years.

Now in any economic entity there is a natural tendency for industry to gravitate towards the centre. That is one, but not the only, reason why in Britain the main manufacturing area is based in the Midlands rather than Cornwall or the Hebrides. This is obviously because it is easier for a national firm to distribute goods to the entire country if it is based in the centre rather than tucked away in a corner.

When tariff barriers are removed from Europe in 1992 Britain will become an obscure distant corner of this new economic market. What is more we are separated by the Channel, and thus even with the proposed Channel Tunnel we are isolated from the mainstream of Europe.

In the past this has been of infinite value to our nation in preserving our borders, our independence and our traditions. In 1992 it is proposed that the economic tariff barriers will be removed while the geographical position obviously remain unchanged. The consequence will be that industry will increasingly be based in central Europe.

This process will steadily accelerate especially as all the main political parties in Britain are anxious to encourage the growth of large multi-national companies at the expense of smaller concerns. Britain will be left to decline as a small impoverished and forgotten region supplied with goods from the industrial heartland of Europe.

The dismantling of tariff barriers will also have other effects. Because taxes are to be 'harmonised' and barriers to trade removed, British firms will have to compete directly with firms in Belgium, France, Italy, Greece, Turkey etc. This means British workers will have to compete with Italian or Turkish workers.

Now this may suit Mrs Thatcher and her big business supporters - it is hardly likely to benefit British workers. To compete with Italian or Turkish workers they will have to be prepared to accept the same wage levels - i.e. British workers can either suffer a drop in wages and living standards or face the sack. There will also be increasing pressure on health and safety standards - but that is unlikely to worry a Tory Government. It also means that in order to stand any chance of successfully competing with French or German firms based in the centre of Europe, British workers will actually have to accept permanently lower wages than their counterparts.

One other effect of the dismantling of trade barriers is that there will be an increase in the standardisation of goods throughout the market as firms attempt to eliminate 'annoying national variations'. Europe, instead of being a myriad of national and regional communities, each with their own traditions, their own manufacturing industries producing distinctly different goods, will degenerate into a grey, drab monolithic consumer market. Local and national variations, traditions and cultures will be diminished by the mass production of Thatcher-style giant multi-nationals.

What is so sick about this scheme is that, like the merger mania which led to the amalgamation of firms such as British Leyland, in time to come, it will all be seen as a grotesque mistake. In the meantime it will cause untold suffering and misery amongst British workers.

★ Rowntrees: Victim of merger mania causing untold suffering to British workers.

The Sickness in our Schools

THIS OBJECT is Austin Allen. He claims he is a teacher. He was sacked from his job at Eccleshill Upper School for having intimate discussions with his pupils about homosexuality.

After Union pressure he was given another job at Grange School but now he faces further investigations that he was in breach of a warning from the council not to talk about homosexual practices with children at his new school.

This creep is sick. The NUT is sick for backing him, and the Government is sick to let such people get anywhere near our kids.

MISS LENA Milosevic, a teacher from Leicester, was given a standing ovation by the N.U.T. Conference in Scarborough in April, when she announced that she was a lesbian.

Such is the upside-down world of teachers that not a murmur of dissent was heard when she added, "When I find myself whispering in the classroom about the good weekend I had with my lover I know some of my colleagues will be offended and hostile".

Now even the most liberal of Nationalists must be asking what on earth does Miss Milosevic think she is doing by raising something like this in the classroom in the first place.

While teachers may not object to this type of teacher, many parents clearly do! On 9th April dozens of angry parents took their children away from Clerkenwell Parochial School in Finsbury, North London. They were protesting at the return of headmaster Hugh Jenkins who was suspended last September after being charged with 'Importuning in a station public lavatory'.

Parents also allege that Mr Jenkins is incompetent and a poor disciplinarian. However despite all this Mr Jenkins was allowed to return as headmaster. He declared: "I intend to stay at the school and teach until I retire - which is in nine years time".

The NUT, no doubt, will support his aim!

Carrying on the fight!

PARENTS IN West Yorkshire are carrying on their battle to send their children to a state school of their choice.

Their 21 children will continue to receive their lessons in a public house from a retired headmaster and two assistants pending a High Court hearing of the parents' case in London on July 11th.

The parents refuse to send their children to a Church of England school where 85% of the children are Asian.

Compulsory Hindu

WHITE children at Crowcroft Primary School in Manchester have been forced to attend Hindu festivals against their parents wishes. Mothers also complain that their children could count up to 20 in Punjabi but not English.

Racial Awareness Worries CRE

THE SUCCESS of the NF's schools' campaign to alert British schoolchildren to the realities of the multi-racial nightmare being forced on Britain has led to a 'panic' response from the Commission for Racial Equality.

In a report the CRE said that racial awareness amongst white pupils in Britain's schools was "serious, widespread and persistent", going on to claim that teachers were as much to blame as children and students.

The success of the NF campaign in schools in Bradford has led the local authority to call on local teachers to confiscate any National Front leaflets, stickers or badges and then report the matter to the police.

These ridiculous panic measures are absurd. That a legal, democratic political party like the National Front should have its literature in schools confiscated when propaganda of all other political parties is freely available smacks of Gestapo tactics. It goes to show just how much the enemies of Britain fear the growth of the National Front and the likely prospect that the current 'school generation' of white children will reject out of hand the compulsory force-feeding of multi-racial brainwashing.

EDITORIAL No. 20. June 1988.

IS IT WORTH IT?

"GOD SAVE OUR gracious Queen" sing National Front members at the end of their Annual General Meeting. The pride on their faces as they bellow out the words makes the hairs on the back of your neck stand on end. Of course its the National Anthem, an unrefutable statement of patriotism and the members of the National Front, the only real patriots in Britain today, take pride in reaffirming their patriotism.

The Queen, Christmas messages apart, has on the whole been an asset to Britain. She has been a dignified monarch who has conducted herself in a manner that has found little fault with the British people. Her passing will be genuinely mourned by the 'man-in-the-street' as a loss to our country. To members of the National Front her passing will be mourned because its likely she will be the last monarch to carry out her duties in a manner that meets the approval of all her subjects whatever their political persuasions.

The Duke of Edinburgh has used ceremonial occassions to make political comment. He is not required or desired to do so by the British people.

Prince Charles has not only made political comments he has cavorted in most undignified manner on numerous occasions to ingraciate himself with Britain's various ethnic minorities. His relationship with the media, using them to promote himself and his family is not what is expected of him as heir to the throne. He does not conduct himself in the manner expected by the British people.

Embarrassing would be the kindest adjective to describe some of the antics of the Duke and Duchess of York, Princess Diana, Princess Margaret, Prince Edward and Capt Mark Phillips. To itemise their indisgressions would fill a page of this paper and to do so is not necessary. Those British people who hold the ideal of the Royal Family dear, need no reminding of how sadly lacking the aboved mentioned are in the execution of their duties.

The revelations this month concerning the father of the Duchess of York gives more ammunition to the abolish-the-monarchy lobby. This writer comments only that when royalty is permitted to marry commoners such things must be expected.

The British people have the right to demand that their Royal Family acts is a manner that is a credit to the nation. The Government of the day, elected by the British people, has the duty to ensure that the wishes of the British people are adhered to.

To be blunt Prince Charles and Princess Diana have proved themselves beyond any shadow of doubt to be totally unfit for the roles that await them.

The British people deserve better. Again being blunt, for the amount of money they pay to maintain the Royal Family, the British would be short-changed by such a succession to the throne.

It wouldn't take many more 'embarrassing' episodes before the British people become suseptible to the 'abolish the monarchy' line. The loss of the Royal Family, who through generations have been an asset this country and its people, would be a tragedy.

Drastic action is now needed. As with the case of King Edward, Government has a duty to step in when a monarch is unsuitable and advise abdication. The Princess Royal, despite having the cross of Captain Phillips to bear, would be more acceptable to the British people.

She stands out head and shoulders above those others of her 'family' and if the Monarchy is to survive she must be the one to succeed to the throne.

And as for the other members of the Royal Family they must be given a strict code of conduct. They have no private life, no right to irritability, no right to air their views, in fact they must do exactly as they are told no more no less. The British people pay dearly for the privilege of a Royal Family, and have the right to get a reasonable return for their money.

NOW THE JAPS WANT TO TALK

★ Japanese bikes: Once they accounted for 90% of the British market. Now the Japs want talks as their sales slip.

THE FIGHT back by the British motor cycle industry over the last three years has prompted our competitors to call for talks to discuss the 'general decline of motorcycle manufacturing throughout the world'.

It is the first time ever that Honda, Kawasaki, Suzuki and Yamaha have been prepared to discuss commercial issues with rivals and it's a sign of how the decline in the industry outside Britain has hurt Japanese companies.

The FLAG* believes we should give the Japs the cold shoulder.

They didn't care when they destroyed the British motorcycle industry. In 1959 there were no Japanese bikes in Britain. In 1987 they accounted for more than 90% of British sales. Less than 1000 British motorcycles were sold in Britain last year.

Despite this the British motorcycle industry has made a recovery. More than 300 motorcycles have been made in the last three years at Norton Motors' factory at Lichfield, Staffordshire and this month they launch a £7,000 production version of a rotary engine machine with sales expected to reach 500 by the end of the year.

Together with a new Triumph and Matchless made by Les Harris's engineering firm in Newton Abbot, Devon, the three bikes are spearheading the British revival.

A National Front government would help the British revival by banning all imports of motorcycles. The only motorcycles bought in Britain would be made in Britain, in British factories by British workers.

In the meantime there should be no talks with the Japanese, the very people who destroyed the British Motorcycle Industry in the first place. There should be just one message to the representatives of Honda, Kawasaki, Suzuki and Yamaha - On yer bike!

THATCHER BACKS ANC TERROR GANG

MARGARET THATCHER has backed down in the face of pressure from within her Cabinet to change the Government's policy on organised terrorism within Southern Africa.

At the Commonwealth Conference in Vancouver last year she had condemned the ANC as a 'terrorist organisation' but following pressure from colleagues within the Tory Party, from Big Business and from church leaders, the 'Iron Lady' has made an embarrassing about-turn.

Foreign Secretary, Geoffrey Howe, confirmed the change in policy when he voiced the British Government's support for the ANC during a speech at the Royal Commonwealth Society last month. He said;

★ Douglas Hurd: Openly supporting the ANC.

★ Black Agitator Winnie Mandela calling for all those who disagree with the ANC to be necklaced.

''We shall keep open all channels of communication with Black opposition groups in South Africa. The ANC are one of those organisations. We acknowledge their role in any negotiation and shall maintain contact with them''.

The only role the ANC terror gang fulfils is murder. Murder of White South Africans. Murder of Black South Africans. In fact the murder of just about anybody who doesn't see eye to eye with them.

And it's murder in the most horrific manner. They just drag their victims out of their homes, beat them up, put a tyre around their necks, fill it with petrol and set it alight, It's called necklacing, it's exclusive to the ANC, and its what the British Government is condoning by its support for the ANC.

Money and Training For Marxist Soldiers

BRITAIN IS committed to providing economic and military aid to the Marxist Governments of Zimbabwe and Mozambique.

The Foreign Office announced that the British Army is to provide military training for Zimbabwean and Mozambican soldiers at the training centre of Nyanga in Zimbabwe.

Money for African Students?

BRITAIN IS to step up its programme of financial aid to young South African blacks.

Foreign Secretary, Geoffrey Howe announced that aid over the next 5 years to train African students will amount to £21 million.

YELLOW IDOLS

MADAM Thatcher clearly believes that the business of Britain is business and she seems to resent the way those tiresome British working men impede the successful running of businesses by seeking more than the third world wages currently on offer in this septic isle.

She has a special admiration for the Japanese. They're real businessmen. One might say that they are her little yellow idols to the East of Katmandu.

UP FOR SCRAP

So, in furtherance of the Tory plan to sell British industry up for scrap to any foreign scrap merchant with money to spare, she positively fawned on Japan's Prime Minister Takeshita during his recent visit to Britain; urging him to invest still more in our booming cheap labour economy.

In doing so, she gave the lie to those who believe that she is possessed of a manic hatred of the British working man, for she actually paid him a compliment.

She said, and I quote; ''Japanese management and a British workforce make an unbeatable combination''. Now isn't that nice? Isn't that condescending?

Isn't it nice to know that we are really quite adequate workers provided we have Jap management to lead us by the hand and probably give us a prod with a samurai sword if we show signs of flagging?

NIP'S NIGGER

It is all rather reminiscent of the attitude of slave owners in the American Deep South towards their Black slaves; ''They're good fellows really, if they're well led''.

Somehow, you know, I sort of resent being thought of as a Nip's nigger. How about you?

Or should we all join in the chorus, ''De sun shines bright on my ole Milton Keynes home''.

WAIT FOR IT

IT IS reported that BBC radio and television is sponsoring an anti-apartheid concert to be held in June to celebrate the 70th birthday of jailed S. African black terrorist Nelson Mandela. They are, apparently, to broadcast ten hours of music, or tribal chanting, from this very important occasion.

CELEBRATE

Perhaps they should hold their fire. It's just possible that the BBC is even now planning a concert of patriotic songs to celebrate the 21st birthday of the National Front - probably about the same time as it celebrates the anniversary of the first pig to become airborne.

Interestingly, though; when Mr John Carlisle, the Tory M.P., protested in Parliament at the BBC's grotesque misuse of public funds, he was assailed by the hebroid Labour M.P., David Winnick, for ''representing the views of the South African government''.

NEGROMANIA

Now some may think that the BBC is rapidly progressing from its customary negrophilism to positive negromania and ask precisely what the hell a state corporation, funded by licence-holders' money, is doing celebrating the birthday of a terrorist.

If, by some mischance, the BBC ever broadcasts a concert in celebration of some anniversary of the Palestine Liberation Organisation, we might discover which government's views Mr Winnick represents.

TRUE TO FORM

I SEE that the grandly-named Broadcasting Complaints Commission has exonerated the BBC following a complaint that that particular nest of vipers had lied about NF involvement in football violence. Surprise, surprise!

Of course there are some simple-minded folk who fondly imagine that the Broadcasting Complaints Commission exists to investigate complaints against broadcasters. They are, of course, totally wrong.

The Broadcasting Complaints Commission, in fact, exists to exonerate broadcasters; thereby doubly defaming the complainants - a fact of which the BBC is well aware since it devoted a good deal of prime time to boasting of its exoneration - a great deal more than it would ever allot to the NF for the right of reply. The right of reply, at the BBC, is reserved for its friends and this nation's enemies - the two being synonymous.

So it gave me great pleasure, initially, to hear of the outbreak of Legionnaires' Disease at Broadcasting House. Like AIDS, I thought, this must surely be a visitation of divine wrath.

Alas, it seems that the devil still looks after for his own, for it was not the mendacious, misbegotten miscreants that the BBC employs as ''journalists'' who had fallen victim to the disease but innocent passers-by.

Apparently, a water tank on the BBC roof had become tainted and had broadcast infection and contamination over a wide area.

LIAR'S DISEASE

''So what's new?'', I hear you ask. Surely that's what the BBC has been doing for years.

True, of course. But why Legionaires' Disease at the BBC? It is surely impossible to conceive of a more slovenly, treacherous, unsoldierly shower.

So, in the light of the latest information, it seems that the pestilence should be given a new name.

Liars' Disease seems to fit the bill.

SONS OF ERIN

LIKE most people, I've always considered basketball to be the greatest non-event since ten-pin bowling, and just about as athletic - a sport designed for people who have outgrown their strength and aren't very good at sport.

It's all the rage at the BBC though; indeed the BBC seems determined to thrust it before our eyes at every conceivable opportunity.

The reason is not hard to find for the basketball court is invariably decorated with wall-to-wall coons. It is, no doubt, just another facet of the BBC's special contribution to the negrification of Britain.

CONGO CAPERS

In furtherance of this grand design, the BBC is now even showing stale snippets of American National League games - invariably infested by players of exceedingly sooty aspect.

But just the other night, it was announced that the next game would feature Boston Celtic. Ah, I thought, this will make a change. No Congo caperers this time but a team of genuine Boston Irish blockheads - probably indoctrinated by generations of malevolent priests to hate the British, but a change nevertheless.

Amid scenes of wild enthusiasm from the Celtic fans, the team emerged and, lo, yet another monstrous regiment of samboid persons.

COCONUT OR TWO

Can these be the Celts who brought Christianity to Britain?, I asked myself. They look more like the mob who brought voodoo to Brixton. Surely this lot never kissed the Blarney Stone - more likely kissed a coconut or two.

Still the fans didn't seem to mind. They'd probably heard of the Black Irish and thought that these were it.

It is, of course, all part of the master plan concocted by multi-racialist and multi-national companies to use the White man's ridiculous obsession with piffling sports as a means on subverting his race - giving mini-minded whites black sporting heroes to idolise, and there are none as mini-minded as basketball fans.

''Following the Nine o'clock News we have ten hours of patriotic songs to celebrate the 21st birthday of the National Front''.

FILM REVIEW

Storm Over COLOURS!

By Ian Sutton

★ DEMONSTRATING AGAINST COLOURS: A black lies in the street outside a cinema showing Colours as part of an anti-racist demonstration.

BESIDES THE coverage of the Palestinian uprising, the second hottest topic in America at the moment is the subject of street gangs and the efforts to counter their activities.

The film Colours could not possibly have arrived at a more appropriate time and is guaranteed to clean up at the box office. It is an extremely realistic and gritty look at human relationships in the Black areas of Los Angeleles.

There are some interesting statistics revealed in the opening credits - 600 gangs, 70,000 members and 387 gang-related killings in 1987, with just 250 police assigned to monitor and curb their activities.

The film's narrative follows the fortunes of two police officers. One experienced but who has never quite made the grade (Robert Duvall) and a 'rookie' cop (Sean Penn). Their department is concerned with gang related crime and straight away we are thrust into a murderous battle between the Cripps(blue) and Bloods(red). These are the colours referred to in the title, insignia, tatoos and body language employed to distinguish a member of one gang from another, where racial differences may not be apparent.

What follows is the police being portrayed, warts and all, attempting to combat the activities of the two Black gangs. The violence is graphically portrayed and the language basic, but in a film, concerning itself with aspects of modern society that many would prefer to pretend does not exist, not to treat the subject realistically would in itself be a crime.

There is much the British Nationalist can learn from Colours. Of course we will never see in a Hollywood film the outright message that multi-racial societies do not work.

We are treated to scenes of desolation and poverty reminiscent of the Third World, but a few blocks away from the graffiti covered walls and litter strewn streets are the ivory towers of finance

Although the gang members have nothing that would interest corporate America (except maybe cocaine for the high flyers) they organise themselves on racial lines and are proud of their heritage if not their present position.

Amercian cities have always had gangs. In the films of the thirties the Bowery Boys of New York were glamourised, but now skin colours have changed and there is a fortune at stake as drugs become the currency of the street.

With 1988 election year in the States, Colours will push to the fore the issue of law and order on the streets of America. It's a film that is worth seeing as a warning to the British people of what the multi-racial society has in store for them.

★ SEAN PENN: Plays the 'rookie' cop. He has been subject to death threats because of his role in the film.

PRIME MOTIVES

by Bob Nash

ON FRIDAY 29th April, Rush played live at Wembly Arena, the second of three scheduled London performances.

Opening the proceedings with a powerful version of The Big Money, it was clear that Rush were in full gear and ready to roll. What followed was a virtually faultless, professional and impressive performance.

The band concentrated mostly on songs from their last four albums. Limelight, Tom Sawyer and the instrumental YYZ (complete with an excellent drum solo by Neil Peart), from the Moving Pictures album, Distant Early Warning and Red Sector A from Grace Under Pressure, Marathon and Manhattan Project from Power Windows, and a selection of songs from the band's latest album Hold Your Fire.

One of the old numbers that did get an airing was the stage favourite Closer To Heart from the A Farewell to Kings album, which prompted a audience singalong. Rush's film and video show did much to compliment and heighten the effect of the band's music, and full marks to the lighting crew for their precision timing throughout the show.

Returning for their encore with an extremely heavy version of Overture and The Priests of Syrinx from their classic 2112 album, Rush provided the perfect ending to an excellent musical evening's entertainment.

Let's hope it's not too long in the future before British fans can once again experience the power of Rush LIVE!

'Well Done' to the Solihull Workers

Dear Sir,

I was pleased to see your report on the Land Rover strike in a recent issue of The FLAG.

I have always had the utmost respect for the workers at the Solihull factory and this high opinion was confirmed by their recent decision to work a four-day holiday to keep the assembly lines going during their spring break to help catch up on the production lost during the strike.

It was vital that these workers stood up for rights and although the strike failed to achieve its aims it showed the management that Land Rover workers would not be walked all over. But it is also vital that the firm maintains its output to secure jobs in Solihull and by working their holiday the workers of Land Rover showed their commitment to the excellent Land and Range Rovers they produce.

Letters

Irresponsible lies from Douglas Hurd.

Dear Sir,

There cannot have been for sometime a more devious, paltry and calculated piece of deceit from a Cabinet Minister than Douglas Hurd's statement on controlled immigration.

The fact is that, despite pretentious and half-hearted restrictions, Asians are still pouring into our country at the rate of 50,000 a year creating intolerable pressure on jobs, housing and environmental resources.

The British public are being hoodwinked about numbers entering, numbers here - it could be 8 million, predicted numbers and their detrimental effect on our culture.

British people are being forced to humble themselves to the privileged and unwanted minority, we are denied the just right to demonstrate by repressive and irrational race laws. yet at the same time we are forced to witness demonstrations by immigrants often for their own petty, inter-racial problems and of no concern to Britain.

The public are slowly but surely coming to realise the absurdity of this situation. Blatant and irresponsible lies such as those from Mr Hurd will only undermine confidence in the Government to confront reality.

Tribute to soldier

A YOUNG sapper who lost his life during the Falklands War will always be remembered at Claro Barracks.

For the two streets which make up the new married quarters at Ripon have been named after him.

Nineteen-year-old Wayne Tarbard, who served with the 9th Parachute Squadron during the Falkland Island Campaign, was killed only three weeks after setting off on the ill-fated Sir Galahad.

He was the youngest member of the regiment to die and his body was never recovered.

Wayne's commanding officer at the time was Colonel Chris Davies, now the commanding officer at Claro.

But the opening ceremony marked a double tragedy for father David Tarbard, 51, and his daughters, Maxine, 21, and Kirsty, 16, who travelled up to Ripon from their home in Derbyshire.

For, just two days before receiving the invitation from Claro, Wayne's mother, Jocelyn, died, aged 49.

The former Mayor of Ripon, Coun Rowland Simpson, was on hand to conduct the official opening.

The married quarters are made up of 34 three bed-roomed and 11 four-bedroomed houses.

The work, which included the demolition of 159 dilapidated system-built houses, began in November 1986 and was completed on schedule this month.

Following the NF 'Names' Campaign

Dear Sir,

With the National Front campaign for 'British Names for British Places' upsetting so many councils in London and Leeds, I thought your readers might be interested in this cutting from the Thirsk Gazette of 29th April.

How right it is that a British soldier who died for his country should be remembered in such a way. It's so much more appropriate than the 'Mandela and Patel' street-naming going on in other parts of Britain.

Defence debate shows need for NF Manifesto

Dear Sir,

At the meeting of Brighton National Front on Thursday 19th May there was a debate on the NF's Defence Policy.

The majority, many of whom included ex-servicemen who served in the last war, voted that 'Armed Neutrality' wouldn't work and that 'allies of convenience' would be a necessary arrangement for Britain to protect her people.

The debate was very interesting but one aspect continually came through in all the discussion - the lack of knowledge on behalf of National Front members as to exactly what the NF Defence Policy is.

I believe that the NF must produce a Manifesto as soon as possible. The Statement of Policy is fine, but its only the bones of NF policy. To stand up to public examination we must put some meat on those bones.

Immigration is the same. As a known NF member in my area I am continually asked how the NF would repatriate the millions of coloured immigrants in this country. People want to know the exact procedure, mainly to assure themselves that it would be done in the most humane way. What exactly is the NF procedure?

Lets have a National Front manifesto produced this year. A manifesto that in the context of Britain in 1988-89 says exactly what a National Front Government would do.

Darren Livermore,
Brighton.

Flying the Union Jack . . . It must be the National Front

EX-SERVICEMAN and flag-maker Frank Inman has been told that he must not fashion a flag display for a hotel on the Yorkshire Moors at Cullingworth.

Bradford City planners told him that if the hotel chose to fly the Union Jack some people might object.

Mr Inman said "The planners told me it had come to be seen by some as the symbol of the National Front.

Not surprisingly the firm is based at the Albion Engineering Works, Albion Road. You can't get more patriotic than that.

Labour Party Picket fails to stop drinkers!

MEMBERS OF Leeds Labour Party picketed the Griffin Hotel in the High Street in protest at the hotel hosting the National Front St. George's Day meeting on April 23rd.

The picket on Thursday 12th May had little effect and a local Leeds paper reported the hotel's bars doing a brisk trade.

WHAT A MEMORY!

SEVEN JEWISH women who knew Anne Frank during the final months on her life have broken their silence after 43 years to tell the sequel to her diary.

The women appear in a new Dutch television documentary which took almost two years to make.

Anne Frank's diary was a forgery, part written in ball-point pen which wasn't invented till years after her death. Let's hope the seven women have been primed not to make such elimentary errors.

FLAG SPORT

Softly, Softly order on West Indian Tests!

FLAG Exclusive!

INCREDIBLE ALLEGATIONS of direct Government interference in influencing of decisions of the Test and County Cricket Board have been made to The FLAG by a person claiming to be involved at "the highest level of cricket authority in the country".

The interference is claimed to be directly connected with the tour by the West Indies and is concerned with 'taking the heat out of the competitive spirit of the test matches.

The allegations were made to The FLAG by an anonymous caller late on the afternoon of Monday 23rd May. The well-spoken, apparently elderly caller, speaking from a pay phone possibly in a pub or club said he got the phone number of the National Front from the Daily Telegraph. He claimed that "A Government spokesman had told the Board that the Test Series with the West Indies was to be portrayed as the 'friendly series'.

"That the racial difference between the two sides was to be minimised as much as possible" and that
"Humourous and jocular interplay between the two teams on the field should be orchestrated at every opportunity".

The Government spokesman is alleged to have summed up the Government's wishes by instructing the board that "Cricket is to be the winner of the Test Series".

If true the revelations point to the Government's concern that racial tensions could be on the boil yet again this summer and that they are prepared to take every measure to keep the lid on unrest. A keenly fought Test Series with a White England against a West Indian side portrayed as 'the enemy' could be the spark to set alight the already unsettled and disgruntled West Indian community in Britain.

Such Government interference in sport, if true, smacks of Orwell's 1984 and should be exposed to the British people. The gentleman who called The FLAG should have the courage of his convictions. He should make himself known and give fuller more detailed description of his allegations.

The point of playing cricket is that the better side wins. The point of overseas sides touring Britain is that their best players are pitted against ours. If the Government hijacks these test matches just to promote Race Relations then the game of cricket will be reduced to farce.

★ Three West Indians played for England in the One-Day tests against the West Indies adding credence to the allegations that the TCCB were told to 'minimise racial differences'.

JAGUAR DO IT AGAIN

MARTIN BRUNDLE (UK) and Eddie Cheever (USA) won the Silk Cut Jaguar Team's third successive victory at Silverstone on 8th May. This leaves Jaguar 15 points clear at the head of the World Sports Prototype Championship.

This has set up the Jaguar team in a perfect position for what could be Jaguar's first win in the Le Mans 24 hour race in June since 1957.

No wonder there is a long waiting list for Jaguar's latest sports car the XJS Convertable.

A DAY OF FUTURE STARS

by our Racing Correspondent

BANK HOLIDAY Monday's racing at Sandown Park saw a number of future stars stake their claim for Royal Ascot honours.

Handsome Sailor looks the sprinter of the year and it will take something special to lower his colours.

Primitive Rising looks a good thing for the Ascot Gold Cup after his easy win in the Mappin & Webb Stakes.

But best for the Royal meeting could be Ian Balding's two year-old, Twain Harte. There is much to like about this filly and she should be in everyone's notebook for the Queen Mary Stakes.

Still on file for June are last months selections Lapse, Dismiss and Silca Supreme.

Football League Attendances Up

ATTENDANCES AT First Division matches fell nearly 3% this year, the Second Division rose 16%, the Third Division were up 17%, Fourth Division up 3%, while the GM Conference rose a staggering 40%.

Perhaps at long last we are seeing people starting to support their smaller local clubs rather than just media-promoted major clubs.

BRITISH FIRM TO GIVE A NEW LOOK TO WEMBLEY

BRITAIN'S NATIONAL stadium is at Wembley - old fashioned, ageing and a disgrace for one of the world's best sporting nations. The FLAG, in previous issues, has made out a case for building a new national stadium.

Now a British firm, Nomad Structures, based in Stroud, have come up with a revolutionary idea for a stadium which can either be open to the skies or be covered. The 'pagoda' stadium has four double-curved segments which can close electronically to form a covering roof.

The firm claim that it is quite possible to use such a structure over a stadium housing at least 80,000 and do not dismiss the idea of still larger ones. Not only would such a stadium be a proud addition to Britain's sporting facilities, it could also build up a West Country firm and gain potential export orders.

RUGBY UNION: Going Professional

SOUTH AFRICAN rugby officials have finally had enough of the deceit and double-dealing of rugby unions in Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

After the International Rugby Football Board announced that individual players could play in South Africa, the various countries have been making it virtually impossible for any senior player to actually go to South Africa.

As a result the Transvaal Rugby Union is threatening to head a break-away movement to launch professional Rugby Union. Should this be the case there is little doubt that South African rugby would have the financial resources to entice many leading players to play in South Africa.
